

Kairos Cookies

Jesus commanded us to perform the corporal works of mercy, telling us that what we do for the least of our brothers and sisters, we do for Him. One of the works of mercy is to help the imprisoned. Seventh graders at St. John School are now providing an opportunity for you to do just that by baking cookies for a Kairos prison ministry weekend. It may be the only time all year that these men are able to enjoy home-baked cookies. When these men experience God's love for them through the time and effort you took to bake homemade cookies, it often opens their hearts to the Gospel message and changes their lives.

In order to participate in this important ministry, please package a dozen cookies in a clear, zip-lock freezer bag (they must be inspected at the prison). If you can bake more than a dozen, please divide into separate packages of a dozen each. Then deliver to your classroom on Monday, Oct. 19, or Tuesday, Oct. 20, and seventh graders will collect them. Thank you and bless you.
